COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course will provide participants in combining a practical experience of conducting a home inspection with the technical home inspection theory and reporting process. It will emphasize the vital importance of site inspection protocol, occupational health and safety, use of home inspection tools, the onsite home inspection process, and the importance of conveying home inspection information to clients in a precise manner. The course will include 1 home inspection with a professional experienced home inspector. This will be supported through course notes including an afternoon session covering reporting writing techniques and theory based instruction. Course includes 1 inspection report from I.S.S. Inc.

This course meets the requirements for credit for continuing education and mentoring.
